

Alissa Martini

Evaluated by Karina Pizarro

I used white-box testing for Alissa's evaluation. After reviewing her code for the web page, everything checks out fine. The code is legible and organized; however, the webpage throws an error message after running the webpage but the errors seem to be fairly straightforward to troubleshoot. Since most of the work is being done on the main branch, it would be good practice for everyone to work on different branches to avoid too many conflicts happening at once, and then push each individual work to the main branch.